NEW YORK AND LISBON – October 2, 2025 – Tribeca Festival Lisboa today announced the lineup for its second edition, taking place October 29–November 1 at Lisbon's Unicorn Factory.

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

The slate features highly anticipated fall releases, standout selections from the 2025 Tribeca Festival in New York, and a vibrant showcase of contemporary Portuguese cinema.

This year's marquee titles include Yorgos Lanthimos' genre-bending "Bugonia" starring Emma Stone, Jesse Plemons and Alicia Silverstone; James Vanderbilt's "Nuremberg" starring Russell Crowe, Rami Malek, and Michael Shannon; Julian Schnabel's "In the Hand of Dante," starring Oscar Isaac, Gal Gadot, Jason Momoa, and Martin Scorsese; "Eleanor the Great," the highly anticipated directorial debut from Scarlett Johansson, starring June Squibb; Michel Franco's provocative new psychosexual thriller "Dreams," featuring Jessica Chastain; and Mary Bronstein's tour de force "If I Had Legs I'd Kick You," featuring Rose Byrne and Conan O'Brien.

Selections from the 2025 Tribeca Festival include Libby Ewing's "Charliebird," winner of the Festival's Founders Award for Best U.S. Narrative Feature; "Are We Good?," a feature documentary from Steven Feinartz featuring Marc Maron; "The Best You Can," a touching dramedy from Michael J. Weithorn, starring Kevin Bacon and Kyra Sedgwick in their first on-screen pairing in two decades; Alberto Arvelo's hauntingly beautiful roadtrip drama "All We Cannot See"; and Lilian T. Mehrel's debut feature "Honeyjoon," shot and set in Portugal and winner of the Festival's 2024 AT&T Untold Stories award, starring Ayden Mayeri, Amira Casar and José Condessa.

In addition to film premieres, Tribeca Festival Lisboa will host a series of Tribeca Talks with iconic talent including Kim Cattrall, Ava DuVernay, Giancarlo Esposito, Edie Falco, and Meg Ryan. In the spirit of cultural diplomacy, these global voices will be joined by some of Portugal's most celebrated artists, filmmakers, and cultural leaders, including Ricardo Araújo Pereira, Cláudia Vieira, and Augusto Fraga.

"At a time when the world can feel increasingly divided, storytelling has the power to connect us across cultures, geographies, and generations. Tribeca Festival Lisboa is more than a showcase of films—it's an act of cultural diplomacy, a celebration of how art can foster dialogue and deepen our understanding of one another. We're honored to continue building this creative bridge between New York and Portugal with our partners at Grupo Impresa," said Jane Rosenthal, Co-Founder and CEO, Tribeca Enterprises.

Tribeca Festival Lisboa also presents a rich program of contemporary Portuguese cinema, highlighting both rising and established voices. This year's national selections include "Match" by Duarte Neves, a poignant character study of aging and loneliness in Lisbon's modern dating scene; "A Memória do Cheiro das Coisas" by António Ferreira; and "Além do Horizonte – A Travessia," an epic family drama from acclaimed director Fernando Vendrell, starring Gonçalo Waddington, Miguel Damião, Rafael Gomes, and Júlia Palha.

"Impresa is proud to continue partnering with the Tribeca Festival in Lisbon, where storytelling transcends borders and global creators take the stage. Together, we shine a spotlight on
