With the benefit of hindsight and years of intense self-examination, Rodriguez confronts the personal struggles and controversies that shaped his journey from “Alex,” a baseball prodigy abandoned by his father, to “A-Rod,” the decorated MLB superstar driven by a relentless pursuit of greatness, no matter the cost. Featuring insights from family, friends, teammates, and broadcasters, the series examines the events that fueled Rodriguez’s rise and fall, as well as his extraordinary talent, his place in baseball history, and the personal growth that defines his life as “Alex” today. The series comes from directors Gotham Chopra & Erik LeDrew, and executive producer Lindsay Shookus. It was produced by Religion of Sports, the media company co-founded by Chopra with Michael Strahan and Tom Brady.
